Objects

With the exception of your Sims' appearance, your home is the ultimate personal expression in The Sims 3. You start out a bit thin in the wallet, but once you start bringing in steady paychecks, you can really indulge your inner interior decorator.

Will every room be a masterpiece? Well that depends on you, but at least it will express your (or your Sims') identity.

This full catalog of objects lists everything you can purchase and customize for your homes. From accents to xylophones, every item is detailed here with all relevant prices and properties, such as effects on skills or the well-being of your Sims.

This chapter covers all the items from The Sims 3 base game, plus World Adventures, Ambitions, Late Night, Generations, and Pets, plus currently available stuff packs.

This section covers Buy Mode, the next section covers Build Mode items that affect your Sims, and the section after that covers the most popular items from The Sims Store.

Note

Don't have every expansion and stuff pack? Don't worry. We've coded each pack so you can quickly see what you have available... and find out what cool stuff you're missing!

Almost every item you buy has far-reaching effects. Some items fulfill specific needs, like Bladder and Hunger, while others contribute to skill development, such as Logic or Cooking.

Still others provide environmental ratings to improve a Sim's home, offer cozy comfort after a hard day, or encourage group activities or socialization. Some items help children learn, or allow Sims to pursue hobbies, skills, or careers.

The following tables note each effect an object has on your Sims. The higher the number, the larger effect it has.

Tip

Most items can be customized to reflect your own inimitable sense of style. Don't settle for the few variations you see in the object menus. Revel in the ability to use Create a Style to splash your creativity all over your Sims' living spaces.

Personally, I couldn't live without my custom magenta zebra print simply everywhere...

Money Makes The Sims World Go Round

Every item also carries monetary requirements. Obviously, every item you buy costs Simoleons. But most items also depreciate. If you sell back an item before you leave Buy Mode, you don't lose any money.

But once you place an item on your lot and exit Buy Mode, that item starts to depreciate. Depreciation progresses at a straight rate of 10 percent per day, capped at 40 percent of original value. For example, an item that cost §100 would depreciate by §10 a day.

If you sold it back after one day, you'd get a §90 refund. And no matter how long you own it (as long as it isn't broken or damaged in a fire) it never becomes worth less than §40.

But that's not all. Each item on your lot factors into how much your weekly bills cost. It runs about §6 per §1,000 worth of stuff. Bear these things in mind before you start livin' large.

USING THIS CATALOG

In Buy Mode, you can sort by room or by function. And depending on which of the expansion packs or stuff packs you have installed, you'll see different items in those categories.

We've listed the following items in the most useful, dialed-down categories, with copious cross-referencing so you can find exactly what you're looking for.

Each category title includes a path that will take you to that set of items. However, this isn't the only path to that item. For example, if you click the icon to sort by rooms, you can find alarms in the kitchen tab, under the alarms icon.

If you sort by function, you can find alarms in electronics/miscellaneous electronics, but mixed in with other miscellaneous electronics. Therefore, we've chosen to highlight the shortest path that leads you specifically to alarms:

Path: room / kitchen / alarm

Note

We've tried to avoid duplication, but some items still appear in multiple places by virtue of their versatility. For example, the Hefty Recycle Me bin appears in both "Disposals" and "Lawn Ornaments." Decorative items in particular tend to appear in multiple categories.

If the category is the same in each sort option, we've included both paths. Where the categories differ, we've included only the path that leads to the exact category featured in the chart.

We've opted for completeness, so don't be surprised if you see items in more than one category or in other locations than indicated.

Each entry is also coded so you can quickly determine which expansion or stuff pack it belongs to. Codes are:

S3 The Sims 3 base game

WA World Adventures

A Ambitions

LN Late Night

G Generations

P Pets

hl High-End Loft Stuff Pack

fl Fast Lane Stuff Pack

Beds

Beds are a critical part of any house. Sleeping recharges a Sim's Energy, and a good night's sleep makes a big difference in your Sims' moods. Upgrade to a better bed as soon as your finances allow.

Note that beds have various interactions besides sleeping. Well that too, but I meant napping and daydreaming!

Cameras

World Adventures introduced photography as a skill. Globe-trotting Sims can buy cameras in foreign locales to begin learning photography. See the World Adventures guide for the full scoop on photography, but be advised: You can only buy cameras abroad.

The cheapest model is available in all three venues, but only the market in Egypt sells the two better cameras.

Computers

Computers are some of the most important objects in the house because they have so many functions.

A computer allows Sims to chat, play games, move to a new house, find a job, check on real estate (Ambitions), or register as self-employed (Ambitions).

You can use public computers on community lots, but having a computer in your Sims' home is a good investment. The better the computer, the less likely it is to break and the more Fun you get from playing games.

The more expensive computers also help do homework faster.

Desk Chairs

The Desk Chairs category that appears in room / study / desk chairs is almost identical to the Dining Chairs category in room / dining room / dining chairs. The Desk Chairs category contains one extra chair: The CEO Ergotistical Chair (marked with a * in the chart).

We've simply added that chair to the Dining Chairs chart (immediately following), so look there for chairs to suit your study area.

Detergent: see Laundry; Misc. Decor

Dining Chairs

As noted above, dining chairs and desk chairs serve similar functions. The category shown below contains one extra chair that you won't see in the dining chairs window: The CEO Ergotistical Chair (marked with a * in the chart).

Find it in room / study / desk chairs. Otherwise the categories are identical, so you can sit on a desk chair to dine, or pull a dining chair up to the desk.

Living chairs are often heavy and overstuffed, and won’t pull up to a table or desk well.

Dishwashers

Sims who have a dishwasher will automatically use it when directed to clean up. The dishwasher is faster than washing dishes in the sink. Cheap dishwashers are loud and prone to breaking and flooding. Handy Sims can repair or upgrade dishwashers.

Disposal

Don’t overlook the lowly trash can. Without it, Sims have to walk clear out to the curb to use the bin that came with the lot whenever they toss or recycle something.

And Eco-Friendly Sims can showcase their commitment to the environment with dedicated recycling bins.

Hot Tubs

Hot tubs, introduced in Late Night, are such a fun item that we just had to give them their own category. (They also appear in Outdoor Activities, later in this chapter.)

Sims love to relax (or get energetic, if you catch my drift) in hot bubbly water. A hot soak soothes stress, soreness, and fatigue. A hot tub also facilitates romantic interactions. Handy Sims can upgrade hot tubs.

Tip

Don't forget to equip your hot tub with a stereo to improve the mood boosting.

Laundry

Laundry was introduced in Ambitions. Sims gain positive moodlets by washing their clothes, either at home or at the laundromat.

Handy Sims can upgrade the washing machines and dryers. A clothing hamper allows Sims to stack multiple piles of dirty laundry without getting a negative moodlet. No surprise: Slob Sims may not always use the hamper.

As usual, the more expensive appliances work better. Cheap washers are noisy and can leave puddles.

Cheap dryers are louder and take longer to dry clothes. And Eco-friendly Sims can rely on natural solar by drying clothes on the Flappin' in the Breeze Clothesline.

Misc. Storage

If your Sims like to make nectar, they'll want one of these nifty nectar racks to store their vino. See Nectar Making in the New Simology section of the World Adventures book for more on nectar making.

And commercial shelves can help ambitious Sims sell their handicrafts. See Real Estate in the New Venues & Real Estate section of the Ambitions book for more about how to buy and stock your own store.

All these vehicles are also contained in the room/outdoor/transportation collection, but we listed them this way so we could separate out the cars.

Tip

You must place a parking space on the lot before you can place a motorcycle.

Outdoor Cooking

Nothing says summer like the scent of steaks sizzling on the grill. Sims can sear hot dogs and hamburgers on the grill or toast marshmallows over the fire pit.

This collection also contains picnic baskets, cakes, and the buffet table, plus the bake sale stand for ambitious kids.

Phones

This category is just for landlines. Remember them? Back in the old days, entire households had to share one phone. Unbelievable!

Modern Sims come with cell phones already in their inventory, but hey, maybe you don’t want to give out that number to just anyone.

Refrigerators

Refrigerators are crucial for storing ingredients and leftovers. As always, better quality ones look nicer and fill the Hunger need faster.

Even if your Sim doesn't plan any culinary adventures, you still need a place to put the leftover pizza, a few half-empty jars of condiments, and the forgotten moldy something hidden in the far back.

Toilets

Unmentionable but essential, toilets are the only way (short of embarrassing accidents) for your Sims to relieve their Bladder needs. Pricier toilets don't break as often (or ever). Handy Sims can upgrade toilets to be unbreakable or self-cleaning (but really, darling, simply everyone has a maid, don't they?).

Toys

Toys keep kids amused, boost their Athletic skill, and even help them learn. If you have Generations installed, the Dreamer's Costume Chest item provides kids with a variety of make-believe interactions. If you have Ambitions installed, kids can set up their own bake sale stand.

A lot of play-related items appear in Outdoor Activities, so look there for treehouses, hopscotch courts, water slides, sandboxes, swing sets, jungle gyms, and spring riders.

Wall Decorations

This is another catch-all category. Wall decorations appear in many places: room / bedroom / wall decorations, room / living room / wall decorations, room / dining room / wall decorations, room / study / wall decorations, room / kids' room / wall decorations, and function / decor / wall decorations. Each of these categories features different art with a lot of overlap. We've chosen function / decor / wall decorations for our chart because that category is the most complete. For more art, see Kids' Decor, Miscellaneous Decor, Statues, and Lawn Ornaments.

The Collections

Most of the items your Sims rely on for day-to-day needs are found in Buy Mode. However, a few categories of items in Build Mode affect your Sims' lives. We don't think it's useful to detail every wall covering or terrain paint; you can find those easily enough if you decide to build or remodel your Sims' home.

But the following charts detail the Build Mode items that improve your Sims' mood in some manner. From columns to fireplaces to trees and shrubs, it's all here.

The Collections

Columns

Nothing says class and old money like stately columns around a Sim's home. Sure, columns support upper stories, but they also uphold your sense of superiority. Raise that nose high and lord it over the great unwashed masses of non-colonnaded Sims.

Fireplaces

A roaring fire lends a cozy ambiance to any room and on the pricer (or upgraded) fireplaces, you can even change the flame color to suit the decor. Sims like to warm themselves at the fire (gives a Cozy Fire moodlet) or poke at the fire (builds Fun). Handy Sims can upgrade the fireplace.

Neighborhoods

Introduction

Depending on which expansion packs you have installed, your Sims have access to up to five towns. In fact, even more towns are available at The Sims Store, but you'll have to discover those yourself.

Herein, we cover the store inventories and collectibles for Sunset Valley, which came with The Sims 3; Riverside, which is available as a free download; Twinbrook, which came with the Ambitions expansion pack; Bridgeport, which came with the Late Night expansion pack; and Appaloosa Plains, which came with the Pets expansion pack.

Each time you upgrade your game with a new expansion pack, the advances you gain apply to other towns as well. So if you installed Ambitions, which introduced the Sculpting skill, you'll see Sculpting books in the bookstore of any town.

Ambitions also added four new butterflies to collect, and those butterflies are not only indigenous to Twinbrook. Your Sims can now find those butterflies in Sunset Valley and Riverside as well, plus in any other town you have installed.

And if you installed the Late Night expansion pack, the new fish that were introduced can be fished up from the waters of any other town you have installed.

To make it easier for those of you who have multiple expansions, we've combined the total inventories of the supermarkets and bookstores. We've also added the the new collectibles to their respective charts.

Note

World Adventures didn't add any new towns, it added new countries: France, China, and Egypt. Many new collectibles, recipes, and items to buy are available in those foreign locales. But in this case, you have to travel there to find those items.

Books that are sold in Egypt aren't available in your bookstore back home, and martial arts, photography equipment, and nectar-making items are only found abroad. Some collectibles are only found in foreign lands. So for many of the new offerings in World Adventures, your Sims have to travel!

Collectibles

Working hard isn't the only way to make a living in The Sims 3. Actually, you can pull in a pretty solid income without punching a time clock. You can collect many valuable things in each town in addition to the bounty pulled out of the water or from your personal garden.

Collect butterflies and beetles to sell to the Science Facility (or keep for yourself). Locate precious gems and metals and refine them into brilliant treasures. Space rocks have hurtled down from the skies and smashed into the ground, too. Seek out these collectibles to both make money and beautify your lot.

To make it easier for the serious collector, we've provided complete lists of all the fish, insects, and minerals you can collect if you have all the expansions. The collectible maps for each town show the spawning points of the various types of collectible.

While the legends portray the collectibles that came with the town at release, you'll see other collectibles at those spawn points depending on which expansion packs you have installed. So look at the spawn maps and cross check them with the complete charts to discover what collectibles you are likely to find.

Note

Don't have all the expansions? Don't worry. We've noted which ones are from particular expansions so you can see what you're missing.

Tip

If you have the Pets expansion pack installed, you can train your dogs and cats to hunt for valuable collectibles. Cats can even catch tasty fish!

Spawn points on the map indicate where a collectible might be found. Sometimes nothing is there. Other times a rare collectible might spawn where previously you've collected common ones. Dedicated collectors keep checking back, or better yet, invest in the Collection Helper Lifetime Reward.

Tip

The Collection Helper Lifetime Reward is a boon for the serious collector because it marks collectibles in Map View.

We've covered the basic of collecting in The Sims 3 portion of this set, so check there for more details. These maps and charts are for quick reference.

Fishing

Fishing is a great way to relax, plus you can earn some money on the side. Reeling in a big catch and selling it to the supermarket is a fun way to line your pockets with Simoleons. Fishing spots in each town are loaded with fish.

On rare occasions, you will reel in something other than a fish. Litterbugs in each town have discarded belongings in the lakes and ponds, but at least their refuse is another Sim's treasure.

When you do manage to reel in a crate, there is a good chance it will contain a valuable item, such as World's Brew Bubble Bath or Death Flower. If you're really lucky, the crate will contain a magic gnome!

Insects

Butterflies

When you collect a butterfly, your Sim closes in on a single insect from the bunch and gently takes it in his hands. Then, the rest of the butterflies vanish until the next day. Once collected, the butterfly goes into your personal inventory.

You can now either take it to the Science Facility and collect your bounty or take it home and place it in a terrarium.

Beetles

Is the ground moving? Or is there something alive down there? You may have to squint, but there are tiny bugs and beetles squirming around the ground that can be picked up and collected just like butterflies. Beetles are another excellent source of income, but they can also be kept on a lot to boost the environmental bonus of a room.

Minerals

Gems

Keep an eye open for rocks on the ground—there are treasures inside them. When you swipe a rock from the ground, you are immediately told what you have found. Having a gem cut increases its value, but this comes at a cost.

You must pay to have a gem cut, which occurs when you send it away via the mailbox out front of your lot. Now, when you first start collecting gems, there is only one cut available: Emerald. The next available cut is Oval, but to unlock this cut, you need to send off four previously collected gems to be cut by the professional jeweller.

After that fourth cut, you get a note saying the Oval cut is now available. So, while it does cost to get these gems cut, the more you do it, better cuts you get—and the more money you can make from selling.

Metals

Precious metals are yours for the taking—but first you have to find them. And once they are in your personal inventory, you must send them away to have a professional process them. Once they're processed, you can either sell metals for profit or place them on your lot for environmental bonuses.

To have ore processed, you must send it off via your mailbox. (Left-click on the ore or rock in your personal inventory to send it off, or click on the mailbox.) It costs Simoleons to get them processed, but when the ingot comes back, the value has improved by up to 75 percent. That's quite a boost for the §50 smelting fee.

Meteorites

Space rocks streak through the atmosphere all the time. Some of them actually crash down and can be recovered by Sims. There are three sizes: small, large, and huge.

Meteorites can be worth quite a bit of money, but there is a degree of risk when you analyze a meteorite to find out exactly what it is.

Sometimes the raw value of a meteorite is greater than its worth once it has been identified. For example, if analysis reveals your meteorite is Ordinary Chondrite, the meteorite is now only worth half of its previous value.

Neighborhoods

Sunset Valley

Sunset Valley is a pleasant little place to call home, which is why so many families have settled down in its quiet neighborhoods. The streets are lined with Sims who love, laugh, and play. Shops offer goods and services to make life a little better.

Collectibles lie in the surrounding countryside, and fish jump in the waters.

Riverside

Welcome to Riverview, population you. This new city for the Sims is a different sort of place than Sunset Valley. Sure, the places have many similar buildings, but the general lay-out and vibe of the town is very different.

Yes, life is a bit less hectic in Riverview—something its citizens seem to like very much. But idyll is always in the eye of beholder. Just like Sunset Valley, there is drama unfolding just beneath the pleasant appearances of the well-decorated houses and perfectly groomed lawns.

Just like Sunset Valley, Riverview is a world of opportunity and possibility. The real estate looks a bit different thanks to the centralized downtown area (you have to love the symmetry of City Hall overlooking that long Four Bridges Park on the island in the heart of Riverview) and the faces are not the same as in Sunset Valley, but it's still a wonderful place to carve out an entirely new life with your Sims. # Bridgeport

Bridgeport

Founded by Ebenezer Alto at the turn of the century, Bridgeport was once a busy shipping town inhabited by sailors and smugglers.

However when the film industry came to the city, celebriteis, Simoleons and the sparkling lights of fame took over.

Now a vibrant city with an energetic nightlife and a bustling club scene, Bridgeport has made its mark on the map. With all the lights on, will its past ever resurface?

Appaloosa Plains

At one time Appaloosa Plains was a sleepy ranching township, its only claim to fame being a garish tourist trap that drew in the occasional curious passerby.

However, a recent influx of city slickers has turned the area into a bustling hub of activity.

They keep arriving with their stacks of Simoleons, retrofitting the town with modern amenities while eagerly believing they've acquired their own slice of country paradise.

The clash between old and new is readily apparent, with some elderly die-hards clinging to the remaining vestiges of life as they knew it.

Will the town come together in a new era of prosperity, or will the generational clash leave a clear line drawn in the sand?

Hidden Traits

As well as these trackable skills, Sims have access to certain hidden skills. These skill generally improve when Sims spend time doing a certain thing or interacting with a certain object.

Some hidden traits can be passed down to offspring.

The Sims 3

The Pyromaniac hidden trait can be earned only through genetics—it's sometimes given to children of Firefighters.

Pyromaniacs can set objects on fire and get a positive moodlet from doing so. Of course, this ruins the object.

Pyromaniacs can also take a fruit and turn it into a Flame Fruit, which Pyromaniacs have fun eating.

World Adventures

World Adventures added two new hidden traits: French Culture and East Asian Culture. These traits are inherent in the non-player Sims who live in their respective destinations.

These traits are also slowly picked up by a Sim the longer they remain in France or China.

These traits affect behavior when in the related destination. For example, when in China, a Sim with the East Asian Culture trait will always eat with chopsticks.

The French Culture trait causes a Sim with the hidden trait to greet other Sims in France with the double-cheek kiss.

These traits are passed down genetically. If a Sim marries a non-player Sim from France or China and has a baby, there is a 70 percent chance the baby will acquire the hidden culture trait.

Late Night

Vampires can pass their... predilection... on to their children. See the the Late Night guide for more information about this thrilling lifestyle choice.

Hidden Skills

The Sims 3

The base version of the game has several hidden skills. You won't see these skill on the Skills tab, nor will they appear in the Skill Journal. But with certain activities or interactions, the more you do it, the better you get at it.

Chess is one such hidden skill: the more you play chess, the better you get at it. Soon you will start winning more and more games.

Your Sims also get better at dancing, playing foosball, and collecting the more you practice these arts.

Sims with the Computer Whiz skill can increase their Hacking ability, and Sims with the Mooch trait can perfect the art of begging (although this is harder if the target Sim is Frugal).

Child Sims can get better at doing homework.

World Adventures

When your Sims are exploring tombs abroad, they sometimes have to dive into wells to continue. The more they do this, the better they get at diving.

And if your Sims buy a Snake Charming basket, bring it home, and entertain their friends with it, they improve their Snake Charming hidden skill.

Ambitions

Ambitions adds five new hidden skills. The more you apply tattoos to Sims, the better you get at it, which in turn leads to greater chances of success or pay-offs.

The Consignment hidden skill operates in a similar manner.

The more you visit and use the consignment store, the greater your reputation at the venue. In turn, this earns you more Simoleons for sold items and gets you dicounts on both objects.

The Styling hidden skill is directly related to the Stylist career.

The more you work with Sims to help them find better outfits, hairstyles, or make-up options, the more you develop this shadow skill.

Two hidden skills are attached to fun objects for your lot: trampoline and Gnubb. Eveybody loves to play on a trampoline. The longer you do so, the better you get at it.

Over time, as this hidden skill is develooped, your Sim jumps higher and pulls off more acrobatic moves in mid-air. Gnubb is a fun backyard game your Sim can play with the Portable Gnubb Set object.

As Sims practice and play matches, they develop this hidden skill. The higher the skill, the greater the chance at victory in a game of Gnubb.

Generations

You can purchase a new Hopscotch Court object in Buy Mode and then place it either indoors or outdoors. Sims aged child and up can then either practice or play hopscotch with other Sims or by themselves.

The hidden Hopscotch skill improves the more Sims practice or play hopscotch. So, at first Sims stumble on the court. But over time, their jumps turn surer. They soon start winning games, which can also fulfill a wish.

Pets

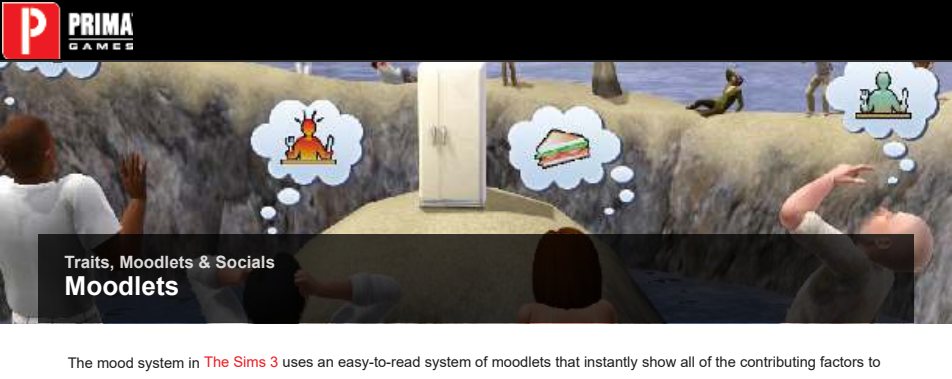
Pets adds a new hidden skill also. Interacting with wildlife builds the hidden Wildlife Friend skill, which is a key factor in taming unicorns!

Watch, feed, or pet wild animals to build this skill. But be careful, because wild animals are unpredictable. If your Sims go too far, they could get bitten!



Traits, Moodlets & Socials

Moodlets

The mood system in The Sims 3 uses an easy-to-read system of moodlets that instantly show all of the contributing factors to your Sim's overall mood.

Use these moodlets to direct your family and make adjustments to behaviors, activities, or objects. If a Sim is Disgusted, look around for something unpleasant like dirty dishes or rotten leftovers.

However, if you note that your Sims are happy about getting a compliment from a smooth Sim (the Flattered moodlet), then make sure they talk to that Sim more often for a good ego-stroke.

Here are lists of all of the moodlets your Sims might experience during their lives. Each moodlet entry lists the effect on the overall mood and the duration of the effect. Most moodlets are self-explanatory.

As you explore the careers, skills, socials, relationships, and objects sections of this guide, you'll find examples of how to generate these moodlets—and how to potentially avoid the bad ones.

Wishes, Lifetime Wishes, and Lifetime Rewards

The Sims 3

Sims want to feel fulfilled. Their dreams and goals define their lives. These aspirations are communicated to you through wishes. Once a wish is fulfilled, it adds Lifetime Happiness points to your Sim's total.

There are two types of wishes: Lifetime Wishes and regular wishes. The Lifetime Wish is an overarching dream that gets assigned when you first make your Sim.

Regular wishes are the day-to-day goals that are met by doing smaller things, like achieving certain skill levels, getting promotions, buying objects, or socializing with specified Sim.

Satisfying wishes gains your Sims Lifetime Happiness points, which can be spent to purchase Lifetime Rewards. These highly beneficial objects, traits, or abilities make your Sims even more interesting and fun to play.
